

Sometimes children perform some sort of trick, i.e. sing a song or tells a ghost story, to earn their treats. Many of them make jack-o'-lanterns out of pumpkins. They light candles in pumpkins and then put them outside our homes to ward of evil spirits. Some of them have scary and some have funny faces. Fire has always played an important part in Halloween because it was considered that people can ward evil spirits, lighting bonfires. Now families celebrated this holiday at homes, sitting by the fire and telling stories while they ate apples and nuts, which ate the traditional Halloween foods..

