

The structure of science

the goal - obtaining new scientific knowledge;

the subject - the available empirical and theoretical information to help solve scientific problems;

the resources - methods of analysis and communication available to the researcher that help achieve acceptable to the scientific community solution to a problem.