

Elements of language C

Constants

- Constants in language C can be numbers (the whole and material), symbols and lines of symbols which is allowable to use in the program in sense of their values. Value of any constant cannot be changed during work of the program. Special instructions of language enable to give to constants of any type symbolical names.